Sumatra Takengon

ROAST: MEDIUM / LIGHT

Very full bodied with a syrupy earthiness.

▼ Nursery Seedlings

Located in the Lake Takengon region of Northern Sumatra, Indonesia, this coffee is grown by farmers in the Koperasi Utamagro Tani Gayo farmer co-op. All along the mountain ranges, organic coffee grows under the shade, part of a richly biodiverse ecosystem. Jim was one the very first roasters to purchase organic coffee from Sumatra. Since then, organic production has increased steadily, with farmers seeing first-hand how organic farming helps them financially, producing higher qualities and yields, and how sustainable farming practices benefit the environment, the land, and the coffee itself.

JIM'S NOTES: Interplanted with tea, cinnamon, and chili plants, this coffee produces a cup that is consistently spice-like with syrupy depth, giving it a unique character as a single origin or when used in blends.
